BILL NYE ON POSTMASTERS. to Be One Himself, and He Knows the Ropes.

[From the New York World.] The New York postoffice is a large, dignified building, situated right where the roads fork; being the place where you can turn off to the right from the main traveled road in order to get to the bridge. It is used partly for a postoffice and partly for a court house, so that one end of the building practically pays the expense of the other end. A self supporting postoffice and court house here, where competition is hot and rents high, would naturally show that times are good and money plenty.

Mail comes here from all foreign countries and Europe also. It is distributed at once, and one is permitted to mail a letter at any time, day or night. It's wonderful. In tall buildings now there is an arrangement by which one may shoot his letters into a runaway or flume, and they will be carried into a United States mail box on the ground floor, where a trustworthy young man in a speckled straw helmet comes and fills his valise with them, after which he carries them, away to the postoffice and personally uses his influence with the postmaster to have them sent away by t he early train.

I stood near the small box at the bottom of the chute in the Standard Oil building the other day, and I remained there 10 or 15 minutes I counted forty-nine letters as they were laid, one by one, hot from the crackling typewriters above, and all no donbt reeking with the bloody and startling statement, coming like a peel of thunder from an unpeeled sky, "Dear Sir-Your esteemed favor of the-th inst, (or ult, or prox.) is before me. In reply would say," etc, There's just about as much use in this opening as there would be in stating that "We take our pen in hand," or in opening a prayer by reading the minutes of the previous meeting.

The New York postoffice is directly connected with the dead letter office at Washington, and those who have never corresponded with that prosper-great boon; though it does not return some things which reach it. A man in Saginaw, Mich., mailed a pair of dress shields by mistake which he had bought for his wife, and though that was two years ago come July they till he got his property back, nothing

Ten years ago, there were 3,000,000 letters sent to the dead letter office in one year, of which 58,000 had no county or State, 400,000 lacked stamps, and 3.000 were posted without any address at all. Ninety-two thousand dollars in cash and over $3,000,000 in drafts were contained in these letters. It appears that right straight through every letter sent to the dead letter office contains on an average $1, so

A Wyoming postmaster used to claim that circular letters, unsealed, if not called for with a day or two, were good things to use in starting the fire. He therefore kept a coal hod near the general delivery, which constituted a a little private dead letter office for his own special use. One day his children were playing tag with each other inside the postoffice and canceling each other's nose with the M. O. B. stamp, when suddenly they decided to investigate the coal hod in search of advertising cards. In each of the two large circular envelopes they found a smaller sealed letter which had worked in by shoving a large mass of letters together for cancellation. The children had torn these two letters open and were playing Fourth of July and Rally Round the Flag, Boys, with a $79 check and a $600 draft when the old gentleman looked up. Justice compels me to say, however, that he spanked the children soundly for his carelessness and refused to let them have fun with his dead letter office BILL NYE. after that.

has yet been discovered; but, as at least four-fifths of human diseases have their source in Impure Blood, a medicine which restores that fluid from a depraved to a healthy condition comes as near being a universal cure as any that can be produced. Ayer's Sarsaparilla affects the blood in each stage of its formation, and is, therefore, adapted to a greater variety of complaints than any other known medicine.

Boils and Carbuncles. which defy ordinary treatment, yield to

Ayer's Sarsaparilla after a comparatively brief trial. Mr. C. K. Murray, of Charlottesville, Va., writes that for years he was afflicted with boils which caused him much suffering. These were succeeded by carbuncles, of which he had several at one time. He then began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and after taking three bottles, the carbuncles disappeared, and for six years he has not had even a pimple. That insidious disease, Scrofula, is the fruitful cause of innumerable complaints, Consumption being only ope of many equally fatal. Eruptions, ulcers, sore eyes, glandular swellings, weak and wasted muscles, a capricious appetite, and the like, are pretty sure indications of a scrofulous taint in the system. Many otherwise beautiful faces are disfigured by pimples, eruptions, thtly blotches, which arise from impure blood, showing the need of Ayer's Sarsaparilla to remedy the evil.

All sufferers from blood disorders should give Ayer's Sarsaparilla a fair trial,—avoiding all powders, ointments and washes, and especially cheap and worthless compounds, which not only fail to effect a cure, but more frequently aggravate and confirm the diseases they are fraudulently advertised to remedy.

How to Get Out of Debt.

[Waldo F. Brown in Farmer's Review.] The farmer in debt must be exceedingly careful of his credit. First he should buy on credit as little as possible. The man who spends his money before he gets it, is always at a disadvantage, for as soon as he gets any mony some hand is reaching for it, and he no sooner has it than it is gone. I think the farmer is more tempted to run in debt than almost any other man, because dealers are so willing to trust him, for his farm is a good basis for security, and it is property which cannot be hidden or carried away. The sooner you can establish the habit of paying cash down for everything you buy the better for you, for if you do this you will often deny yourself many things which y. " can do without. It will require firmness and self-denial to buy only what you can pay for, but without it you are in danger of getting into the habit of buying on time, and keep yourself always in debt. There This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. It is and Buggies and Carriages of other a good plan whenever you reach the manufactories. conclusion that you need to make an expenditure, to postpone action until you sleep and then talk the matter over with your wife. Often a little cool reflection will save your incurring a debt which you will find burdensome and a cause for regret. I know a young farmer some years ago who was badly good security. in debt and so situated that he must hire all work done that he could not do himself, who bought a $100 fruit evaporator in a year when fruit was plenty. Guarantee Satisfaction. A few days running it with hired help showed that he could not make expenses, and it was set away and has not | wait on you. been used for ten years, but during all that time he has been paying interest on its cost. Another case which came under my notice, was a young farmer paying $35 for a force pump and rubber hose to water his sweet potato bed, and finding it did not pay it was thrown aside after a single year. I could multiply instances which illustrate the truth I wish to enforce which is to make no outlay which is unnecessary, but it is only needful to call attention to it, for the man who keeps his eyes open will see in his own neighborhood plenty of illustrations. Another help to getting out of debt is to make the farm DIMONDS. WATCHES. produce as far as possible the family supplies. I know farmers in debt who depend on the butchers for almost the have large families take no pains to have regetables, fruits poultry, etc., Pocket and Tabl Cutlery, and are even careless about a constant and regular supply of milk and butter. Now it is as easy to plan so that there shall be a small steady income to meet the little outgoes, and the most prosperous farmers I have ever known were hose who rarely got to town without a package of butter, a basket of eggs, some poultry, fruit or vegetables to help pay the bill. There is a great failure to live up to the privileges of the farm as well A Good Opportunity as to secure its profits, to the man who does not look after the many small sources of supply and income which the farm furnishes. The most important advice I can give to the farmer in debt I believe to be to put more of thought into the work of his farm, and what I mean by this is, that you should docide upon a plan which is adapted to your land, your locality and your own taste and capacity. Half the farm management with which I am familiar is of such a character that any man could see that it would fail of profit because the owners are not studying to know what is best for them, but only may be, may care himself cheaply, pritrying to copy after some one else. There is also a lack of persistency, and a disposition to change the plan of management too often. There are few localities where some line or farming cannot be chosen that will prove profitable, but in choosing we must act | 41 Ann Street, New York, N.Y. P.O. Box450 deliberately and wisely, and having chosen must adhere persistently to our plans. Lastly we must not grow discouraged if our progress is slow. The position of a farmer out of debt and with a farm in good condition as regards fertility, buildings, fences, etc., is one worth a long struggle, and I know no man more to be envied than the one

[New Orleans Picayune.] Since the Charleston earthquake astonished the people of the United States a few years ago they are prepared to believe almost anything concerning terrestial convulsions. The following story from Mexico is of interest in this connection: There is a town in Cadereyt District, Queretaro, called Tetillas. Near this town is a mountain called Cerro Grande. On the 6th inst., between 3 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, a third part of the mountain sank, leavivg only two inches of the crestabove the earth where the foot of it used to be. The part sunk has a circumference 480 feet. Its length is about 114 feet, and its width 90 feet. At the base of the moutain there existed two springs one of good drinking water and the other salt water. Both have disappeared. On the 30th of July the mountain was shatterred by an electric discharge. The Governor of Queretaro has asked the Prefect of the district furnish him full details of the sinking Lellar's Bock Crystal Spectacles and Eye Glasses of the mountain.

Baltimore for paying streets, laying water mains, &c. The money put in savings banks is not withdrawn from circulation and hoarded in their vaults. On the contrary, it is to considerable extent taken out of secret hiding places and put into circulation for the most useful purposes. The banks must lend the money out in some way to earn interest on it, and that it must be put to the best uses is apparent from the care which must secure the safety of the principal as well as interest.
